

RISK WARNING STATEMENT

August 19, 2024

Please read and understand this Risk Warning Statement (“Risk Statement”) before accepting it. Before you begin using our platform, it is crucial to recognize that investment and trading in various markets involve certain risks. This Risk Statement does not and cannot cover all the risks and other factors related to using our platform.

NO INVESTMENT ADVICE

To clarify, Orisun does not offer any investment advice concerning any instruments traded through our platform or otherwise. We may provide information on the pricing, range, or volatility of certain instruments, but this information should not be interpreted as investment advice.

Any opinions, news, research, analyses, prices, or other information provided within the platform are intended as general market commentary and should not be considered investment advice.

MARKET RISK

Markets for various instruments can be highly volatile and unpredictable. It is essential that you understand the risks involved in trading, as price fluctuations in the underlying markets can impact the profitability of your trades. You are solely responsible for monitoring your positions on your account, as Orisun does not monitor them for you.

Keep in mind that past performance, simulations, or predictions are not indicative of future outcomes. You must not base assumptions about future performance on historical data, simulations, or forecasts.

Some instruments may become illiquid due to reduced demand, making it difficult to determine their value or assess associated risks. Under certain market conditions, it may be challenging or impossible to close a position. Orisun makes no guarantees that any instrument will be tradable through our platform at any given time or in the future.

Understand that you may lose your entire initial investment, and in some situations, losses may exceed your initial investment.

TECHNOLOGY-RELATED RISKS

There are inherent risks in using an Internet-based platform, including but not limited to hardware failures, software glitches, internet connectivity issues, computer viruses, and cyber-attacks. Orisun is not responsible for any communication failures, disruptions, errors, distortions, or delays that may occur while using our platform.

Errors may occur while trading through our platform, which could result in delays or failures in executing your orders. You should be aware of the risks associated with system failures.

Your ability to submit a transaction request may be hindered, or your request may not be received by Orisun due to hardware, software, or service issues, including internet connectivity problems.

Unauthorized third parties may access or use your account and execute transactions without your knowledge or consent by obtaining your account password, gaining control over a device or account used in connection with any security measures enabled on your account, or through other means.

LEGAL RISKS

Certain legal risks are associated with instruments traded through our platform. It is your responsibility to understand how the instruments you trade are regulated, taxed, and treated under the applicable laws.

The tax treatment of your trading activities may vary based on your location and individual circumstances and is subject to change. It is your duty to accurately report all income from your activities on our platform in accordance with the law and to pay any taxes and fees owed. Orisun is not a tax agent.

Some financial instruments may be interpreted differently under the law in various jurisdictions, and their legal treatment may change. Changes in tax laws, government policies, and other regulations may have a significant impact on your trading activities.

COMMISSIONS AND FEES

Before starting to trade, you should be fully aware of all the commissions and fees that you will incur. If any charges are not stated in monetary terms (e.g., as a percentage of the contract value), ensure you understand their actual monetary value.

CURRENCY RISK

Be aware that financial instruments denominated in currencies other than your home currency carry additional risks related to currency fluctuations.

You should understand how various risk factors can affect your trading strategies and investments. It is advisable to consult a qualified attorney or independent financial advisor before deciding whether our platform and services are suitable for you.

---

Feel free to make any additional adjustments as needed for Orisun.